

PET/CT IN ONCOLOGY

Introduction to Guest Editor – Tzu-Chen Yen, MD, PhD

I wish to thank Professor Tzu-Chen Yen for serving as the guest editor. The authors who have contributed articles to this special section on “PET/CT in Oncology” are all outstanding experts in their fields.

Prof. Tzu-Chen Yen graduated from the medical college of Yang-Ming University in 1982 and subsequently earned her PhD there from the Institute of Clinical Medicine in 1991. Further more, she completed her resident training in the department of nuclear medicine at the Veteran General Hospital in Taipei in 1986.

Presently, Dr. Yen serves as the professor and chairman of the department of nuclear medicine at Chang Gung Memorial Hospital, Chang Gung Medical College and University. She is academically active and having involved in researches on molecular biological imaging and genetic analysis related to cervical cancer; nasopharyngeal cancer, and oral cancer; she is also involved in neurotransmitter and receptor studies in neurology and psychiatry. She has contributed one book chapter and published 128 articles in the field of nuclear medicine. Prof. Yen is internationally known. She has been an invited speaker at the American and South African Society of Nuclear Medicine and a visiting professor to Fu-Dan University in Shanghai, and Union Medical College Hospital in Peking.

Dr. Tzu-Chen Yen

Fu-Chan Wei, MD
Editor-in-Chief