

UPDATE ON BILIARY ATRESIA 2006

Introduction to Guest Editor – Jiin-Haur Chuang, MD

I wish to thank Dr. Jiin-Haur Chuang for serving as a guest editor. The group of authors who contributed articles to this special section on Update on Biliary Atresia are outstanding experts in their field.

Dr. Chuang graduated from National Taiwan University school of medicine in 1976 and completed his general and pediatric surgery in 1982 at National Taiwan University Hospital. Subsequently he received one year clinical fellowship in pediatric surgery at Chang Gung Memorial Hospital and earned a master degree of science in experimental surgery in 1986 from Mc-Gill University, Montreal, Canada.

Dr. Jiin-Haur Chuang

Currently Dr. Chuang is a professor of surgery, and serves as the chairman of surgical department and associate director of graduate institute of clinical medicine, Chang Gung University, medical college.

Dr. Chuang has won reputation both nationally and internationally for his clinical and research achievements in pediatric surgery especially related to biliary atresia and has been invited to speak at several meetings and medical centers. He has published more than one hundred articles and now sits on the editorial board of our journal and serves as a reviewer for many others.

Fu-Chan Wei, MD
Editor-in-Chief